ChromaForge player guide

Everything you need to make a character and play. Your GM runs the world; you run your character.

What you need

One d20, a few d6s, paper, and pencils. That is all.

The Five Founts

Founts are laws of being without agency. They cannot want, permit, punish, or plan. People and creatures have motives; a Fount effect has a reliable, discoverable rule.

Fount	Color	Domain	Common action
◊ Seron	yellow	Integrity, boundaries, truth	define, judge, protect a line
∵ Orvik	blue	Knowledge, memory, hidden structure	study, recall, reveal a pattern
ϟ Zhark	red	Spark, rupture, transformation	alter, improvise, break a pattern
△ Drun	green	Fortitude, endurance, regrowth	endure, heal, carry, persist
⌘ Veyra	purple	Charm, bonds, social pull	persuade, perform, connect, untie

Character creation

One procedure; no House, Guild, class cap, or second stat roll.

1. Concept. Name the character and describe one visible trait and one desire (it also says why you travel with this party). Pick an ancestry from the roster: note its boon and bane. The boon is +1 to one of its listed Founts (your choice). The bane is −1 to its bane Fount.
2. Roll Founts. Roll 6d6 and drop the lowest. Halve each remaining die, rounding up (1–2 is 1, 3–4 is 2, 5–6 is 3). Assign the five values to your Founts (◊ Seron, ∵ Orvik, ϟ Zhark, △ Drun, ⌘ Veyra) however you like. Then apply your ancestry's boon (+1) and bane (−1). Step 3 adds the archetype's +1; all modifiers stack and are added after assigning.
3. Choose an archetype and specialty. Pick one archetype and one of its specialties from Starting archetypes. Copy its kit and archetype ability. Your archetype adds +1 to its Fount, which is also its normal attack Fount. Your specialty gives no stat bonus; its ability text names any Fount it uses. Archetype is a beginning, not a restriction.
4. Derived values. Maximum HP is `6 + △ Drun`. Maximum mana is `3 + ∵ Orvik`. Armor value is `0` unarmored, `1` light, `2` heavy.
5. Finish. Copy equipment, choose one useful mundane personal item, and one mundane knack (cooking, knots, card tricks, a song). A knack gives no bonus, but you never need a roll to do it well and the GM uses it in the fiction.

Example: rolls `6, 2, 4, 1, 5, 3` drop the 1 and halve to `3, 1, 2, 3, 2`; assigned as ◊ Seron 3, ∵ Orvik 2, ϟ Zhark 1, △ Drun 2, ⌘ Veyra 3. An elf (◊ Seron boon, ⌘ Veyra bane) who picks a ◊ Seron archetype (Warden) ends with ◊ Seron 5 and ⌘ Veyra 2.

Checks

Roll only when outcome is uncertain, risky, and consequential.

1. GM names the risk and consequence before the roll.
2. Choose the Fount matching the method, not the desired outcome. Players may propose another method.
3. Roll `d20 + Fount` against difficulty.

Difficulty	Target	Use
risky	10	pressure exists; meaningful uncertainty
hard	15	expert or strongly opposed task

Easy tasks need no roll; extraordinary ones are hard with a cost or a need for preparation. Take 10: with time and no pressure, skip the roll and count it as a 10.

Natural 1 is a critical failure: consequence is worse or creates a new danger. Natural 20 is a critical success: succeed and gain an extra advantage. These override the total.

NPCs do not make opposed rolls. Set difficulty from the situation. Helping requires a concrete action; useful help or good preparation gives advantage: roll 2d20, keep the higher. The helper shares the consequence.

Clues: Correct investigation always reveals the essential clue. A check decides speed, safety, completeness, or extra leverage—never whether play stops.

Combat

Use combat only when sides cannot or will not settle the conflict another way. Enemies need a motive and a condition that ends the fight.

Start and turns

- If one side surprises the other, that side starts. Otherwise roll a d6 once: odd means party starts, even means enemy group starts.
- Alternate the whole party turn and the whole enemy-group turn.
- During party turn, each player chooses their own order and action. GM orders enemy actions.
- Each character gets one move, one action, one reaction, and any bonus action granted by an ability.
- One move crosses a nearby zone or about 30 feet. Action attacks, casts, helps, rescues, uses an item, or attempts another consequential task. One reaction responds to a clear trigger; it refreshes at the start of the party's turn.

Attacks and damage

Attacks always land unless fiction prevents them. No attack roll, no Defense.

1. Roll `d6 + attack Fount` (+1 for a heavy two-handed weapon).
2. Subtract target armor (minimum 0). The rest is HP damage.

The archetype kit names its normal attack Fount; unusual methods use the Fount agreed before rolling. Improvised harmless objects deal `d6 − 2` (minimum 1). Fiction can make an attack impossible or remove cover before damage is rolled.

Alpha has no separate intellect score: use ⁘ Orvik for risky knowledge, memory, or analysis.

Downed and rescue

At 0 HP, a character is down: unable to act, but available to rescue. If every party member is down, GM follows enemy motives—capture, theft, abandonment, or rescue are better alpha outcomes than an unexplained total-party death.

Playtest rule: rescue. An adjacent ally spends an action to get a downed character to 1 HP; medicine or magic explains how when available but is not required. Reason: downed play must be recoverable before spell resources and healing requirements are settled. Decided for alpha: rescue needs no healing.

Maiming. Instead of waiting to be rescued, a downed character may take a scar to rise at 1 HP immediately (no action). Roll 2d6 (below); the scar is permanent, and long rests do not heal it.

Roll 2d6. The first die is the injury, the second the body part.

d6	Injury		d6	Body part	−1 to checks that rely on
1	Lost		1	left arm	two hands or a steady grip
2	Maimed		2	right arm	fine handling or a strong swing
3	Ringing		3	left leg	speed or balance
4	Disfigured		4	right leg	running, climbing, or kicking
5	Haunted		5	torso	endurance or bracing
6	Scarred		6	head	sight, hearing, or wits

The injury is fiction; the body part sets the −1. Read the injury to fit the part: lost left arm is an amputation, ringing head is tinnitus, ringing left leg is painful phantom vibrations, haunted left arm is trembling, scarred head is a facial scar. The mechanical penalty is the same whatever the injury, so the player and GM may play a lost limb as harsher in the story.

Each body part can be maimed once: four limbs, torso, head. If the part rolled is already maimed, the player picks any unmaimed part and keeps the injury rolled. The GM may waive a scar that does not fit the fiction. Rescue stays free and carries no scar. A character can keep adventuring with up to five maims; at six the character cannot continue adventuring. Retire them or let the GM decide their fate.

Recovery

- Short rest: about an hour of safe, quiet downtime. Restores 1 mana and refreshes abilities that work once per short rest.
- Long rest: an undisturbed night: shelter, watch, and immediate threats handled. Restores all HP and mana and refreshes abilities that work once per short rest or once per long rest. Unsafe sleep advances time but is not a long rest.
- Day: dawn to the next dawn. Abilities that work once per day refresh at dawn.

Food and rations are not tracked.

Shared meal. During a short or long rest, one character cooks (no roll; a cooking knack makes it memorable). Everyone who eats picks one: recover 1 mana, or gain advantage on one check before the next rest. A character gets one meal benefit per rest.

Magic

Magic expresses one or more Founts; it does not give a Fount motives. Describe intended effect and method. GM chooses the relevant Fount, scope, difficulty, and failure consequence. Risky casting uses the same `d20 + Fount` check and natural 1/20 rules. Minor effects with no risk need no roll.

When to roll. A spell used exactly as written on a willing creature or an unattended object, within its normal scope, is automatic. Roll when the circumstances are difficult or the use is unusual. A spell that controls, disables, or erases an unwilling creature is a hard cast; on success it lasts up to a minute or until the creature is hurt, and the creature may try a risky check at the end of each of its turns to shake it off. Stretching duration, range, or scope raises difficulty by one step or adds 1 mana, GM's choice. Anything beyond what the spell fundamentally does is not possible.

A spell cannot erase an established clue or fact. Larger scope, distance, duration, or unwilling targets increase difficulty. Damage spells roll `d6 + Fount` (+1 for large scale), minus armor.

Mana. Each spell has a base mana cost in spells. The cost drops by 1 if you cast with a Fount score of 4 or more and by 2 at 6 or more, never below 1 (never below 2 for a base-3 spell). A failed cast still spends its mana, and a natural 1 has its usual consequence. Minor effects with no risk are cantrips: no roll, no mana. With no mana left, you cannot cast spells.

A new character knows 1 or 2 spells of their choice. Further spells are learned through play.

Advancement

Award an obstacle once when its immediate stakes are settled, regardless of fighting, negotiation, stealth, magic, retreat, or another approach.

Obstacle	Points	Example
minor	1	one risky scene or local cost
major	2	several scenes or serious lasting stakes
critical	3	settlement, faction, or campaign-changing stakes

Spend points on any Fount. Raising a Fount costs its new level: 1→2 costs 2, 2→3 costs 3, 3→4 costs 4. Unspent points carry over.

Higher scores will unlock abilities, but thresholds are not defined. Starting archetype and specialty abilities are not threshold unlocks.

Ancestries

Boon and bane measure a people's resonance with a Fount, not intelligence, charm, or morality. Size: large peoples can block passages, carry heavy loads, and reach farther but cannot fit narrow gaps (size never changes attack range unless an ability says so); small peoples fit tight spaces and can be carried. Size gives no stat bonus. Traits in the notes column are biology, not required personality.

Boon: +1 to one listed Fount (your choice). Bane: −1 to that Fount's score, so it affects every check, attack, and spell that uses it. Shelled elemental also rolls 1d4 for its element, which gives no stat bonus.

Starting archetypes

Archetypes are starting training, not classes or caps. Characters may learn any specialty or ability through play. Each Fount has three archetypes; each archetype supplies one kit, one archetype ability, and three specialties: one of its own Fount and one of each of the two Founts opposite it on the wheel (yellow, blue, red, green, purple). Your archetype gives +1 to its Fount; specialties give no stat bonus.

Spells

Active alpha spells. Rules for casting, mana, and rests are in the guide.

- Starting spells: a new character knows 1 or 2 spells. More are learned through play.
- Cost: base mana cost in brackets. It drops by 1 if you cast with a Fount score of 4+ and by 2 at 6+, never below 1 (never below 2 for a base-3 spell).
- Defaults: range nearby (about 30 ft), duration 5 minutes. Larger scope, distance, duration, or unwilling targets are harder.
- Stacking: the same spell does not stack with itself; the newer replaces the older. Different spells stack, but spells never raise armor above 3.
- Unwilling targets: Charm, Babble, Boogie bomb, Improv sesh, and any other spell that controls, disables, or erases an unwilling creature follow the hard-cast rule in the guide.
- Check: see when to roll. A risky cast rolls `d20 + Fount` for the spell's Fount. A failed cast still spends its mana.

⚕ Seron

- Force shield (2): a bubble covers you and one nearby ally; damage to them is reduced by `d6` until your next turn.
- Reveal path (1): you know the direction and rough distance to anything or anyone you have seen in person or in a picture, even an unrecognizable one. It shows no obstacles or dangers, and wards can block it.
- Seal (2): name a door, container, or line; it cannot be opened or crossed until you leave or end it. Forcing it takes a hard check.
- Ironbane (2): for 5 minutes, the first iron weapon or tool to touch you disintegrates, then the spell ends. Iron bars, structures, and armor are not affected.
- Cast fog (1): fog in a color of your choice fills a nearby zone.
- Telekinesis (2): move unattended objects nearby, up to your ⚕ Seron score in number. Heavier or more numerous loads make it a risky check.

∵ Orvik

- Simplify problem (1): reveals a clue and makes one hard task risky instead.
- Wizard mark (1): touch to coat a target in paint only casters can see, even through walls.
- Thaumaturgic anchor (2): an enchanted item draws the next spell or magical effect aimed at something else nearby, then goes inert.
- Illusion (2): an illusion aimed at one of a target's five senses.
- Mirror image (3): physical clones of you appear, as many as your ∵ Orvik score, for 5 minutes. They have your mindset and act on their own, have your normal physical capabilities, cannot cast spells or use abilities that cost mana, and vanish if hit once. They carry no copy of your inventory, gear, or tools; clones cannot use consumables. They move and act independently, but only one clone can attack each round, dealing `d6 − 2` (minimum 1).
- Question rock (1): ask an object or non-verbal creature one question about what it has plausibly perceived. Only you hear the answer, and it is always true but may be partial.

ϟ Zhark

- Filch (1): a visible unattended item nearby teleports to your hand. An item someone holds or wears makes it a hard cast.

- Gravity shift (2): choose a direction for gravity to pull you, with no fall damage, for 5 minutes. Changing the direction takes your move.
- Flesh warp (3): a touched creature doubles or halves in size for 5 minutes. Doubled: physical reach (not attack range) and carrying improve and it deals +1 damage, but it cannot fit narrow gaps. Halved: it fits tight spaces and deals −1 damage.
- Elemental hand (2): control air, earth, water, or fire nearby. With a ϟ Zhark score of 2 or less, roll `1d4` for the element.
- Summon thing (2): real items you have seen within the last day, small enough to hold in one hand, appear in your hand, up to your ϟ Zhark score in number. They are moved from where they were, not copied, and return when the spell ends unless used up. An item someone holds or guards makes it a hard cast.
- Time jump (2): a touched item vanishes and reappears at the same spot, after a number of minutes equal to your ϟ Zhark score, with the same momentum. If the spot is occupied, it appears in the nearest free space.
- No u (2): reaction: flip a coin. Heads: the attack hits the attacker instead. Tails: it hits you as usual, with +1 damage.
- Polymorph (3): a touched willing creature takes another form of about its size until you end it or 5 minutes pass.

△ Drun

- Healing touch (2): heal a touched ally `d6`, or remove one negative effect.
- Defy death (3): the next hit that would drop a touched ally to 0 HP leaves them at 1 HP instead. It ends then, or at your next short rest.
- Leather carapace (2): a target's skin hardens like steel (+1 armor) until your next short rest.
- Embolden (1): a touched ally gets +1 to their next check.
- Ghost of pets past (2): a ghostly familiar absorbs `d6` + △ Drun damage until it is used up or 5 minutes pass.
- Rooted path (1): the ground firms up for the party: mud, ice, rubble, and loose scree become safe to cross for 5 minutes.
- Shelter (2): plants and earth shape a lean-to or low wall nearby for up to six people; those inside count +1 armor until you leave or end it.
- Tireless (2): until your next long rest, a touched ally ignores one hardship you name: fatigue, thirst, or ordinary weather.

⌘ Veyra

- Charm (2): targets are drawn to an object or creature you choose, up to your ⌘ Veyra score in number. They approach it and fix their attention on it, but will not walk into obvious danger or attack because of it.
- Dread presence (1): creatures nearby that have not noticed you turn anxious and skittish.
- Improv sesh (2): the target cannot recall what it was thinking and doing for the last 5 minutes, until it sleeps or is shown strong proof.
- Vibe check (1): name a nearby creature; you learn its intent toward you, and if it is hostile its next attack deals half damage.
- Babble (1): the target must loudly repeat your thoughts and is otherwise mute. Casting spells does not require speech, so this does not stop it.
- Boogie bomb (2): the target dances and cannot otherwise move for 1 minute or until it is hurt.

Cantrips

Cantrips are effortless expressions of a Fount. They cost no mana and need no roll, so they can be cast freely. Their effects are small, brief, and harmless: range self to 15 ft, duration 1 minute unless stated; effects that record or encode something last as stated. They cannot directly inflict or prevent damage, restore health, impose mechanical conditions, or compel another creature's actions. They cannot stack with themselves, bypass a significant obstacle, permanently change a creature, or do what a spell does. Names come from V1.

A cantrip can still have indirect results in the fiction: a small light may expose a hidden creature, and a noise may distract a guard. Cantrips manipulate details; spells change outcomes. A cantrip gives one useful way to approach a problem; it does not solve a whole encounter.

⚕ Seron

- Blade ward: a held shield or weapon shows its nicks, cracks, and weak points in faint light. It does not change how well it protects or cuts.

- Thaumaturgy: a harmless sign of power: a tremor, a louder voice, a flickering flame.
- Mark boundary: draw a glowing line up to 10 ft long.
- Threshold sense: mark a doorway or opening; you are warned if something crosses it while you are nearby.
- Steady hand: hold a small object perfectly motionless where it is, or keep your own hand perfectly steady during delicate work, for 1 minute.

- Shillelagh: a wooden object feels unusually rigid for a minute. Its combat use does not change.

- Decompose: speed decay in a tiny amount of dead organic matter.
- Seed wake: a viable seed sprouts a little, or a small plant recovers from mild wilting.
- Spare the dying: sense whether a creature is alive, stable, or dying. It does not stabilize or heal them.

- Shared rhythm: you and one willing creature fall into step, keeping an even pace together while walking, rowing, or working for 1 minute.
